Customer Reviews

These little books are nicely written and have full color illustrations. The stories are compelling enough that you might want to read them to your child. The vocabulary is more advanced than what I was anticipating though and it will be a while before my son will be ready to read them. To give you a feel, this passage is from "The Elves and the Shoemaker": "But a magical thing happened. When the shoemaker woke up, the leather had already been turned into a fancy pair of shoes! 'Wow! I will sell these at the market,' he said." This passage is from "The Princess and the Pea": One stormy night, there was a knock on his door. When the prince opened it, he saw a girl. Her hair was wet. Her clothes were muddy. And she was shivering."

What could be better than hearing the stories that swirl around our lives then watching your child read them for the first time! This box of books is packed with all of the stories that you know (Princess and the Pea, Three Little Pigs, Ugly Duckling) and even a few others (like Martina the Cockroach) that you might not. The repeating structure, simple words, and fabulous pictures will make these stories a great choice for young readers because they already know how the whole story structure goes so they can practice the specific words again and again. But the great thing is that they are not boring either! And the illustrations are superb! Now just so your expectations are clear there will be lots of words that your little reader will have a hard time with (like delicious) but it repeats so often that they will learn it by sight and not phonetically, which, to my mind, is the right way to teach reading- using both methods. My daughter adores this set of books and I do too, and you can't say better than that!

15 Fairy/Folk Tales that are great for beginning readers. These are just perfect for my Kinder and 1st grader. The short stories included are, "The Elves and the Shoemaker," "Stone Soup," "The Three Little Pigs," "The Three Billy Goats Gruff," "Goldilocks and the Three Bears," "The Spider and the Beehive," "The Little Red Hen," "The Nightingale," "The Gingerbread Man," "The Princess and the Pea," "Martina the Cockroach," "The City Mouse and the Country Mouse," "Cinderella," "The Tortoise and the Hare," "The Ugly Duckling."

These books are colorful and beautifully illustrated. These books correspond to reading level E to I with 3-4 sentences on each page. These are not for beginning readers but are good books for independent readers.

It's not easy to find leveled reading books but when my 1st graders were struggling with reading we did 2 things 1) we got them a tutor to learn some decoding rules/tips 2) bought them this (and a couple of other) level reading sets. This particular set is for readers at level E-I. Unlike many leveled reading books - these are actually enjoyable to read. Classic children's stories have been adapted to the appropriate reading level. It's been fun to discover Stone Soup, The Ugly Duckling, The City Mouse and the Country Mouse, The Tortoise and the Hare, as well as many others. The books have a small form factor. They won't take up a lot of room in your child's library. The box makes them easy to take on car/plane trips. Definitely a good buy.

My daughter and I love these little books. They are guided reading level D-I which were just right for her in first grade. I bought these books hoping to supplement her school books. These paperback books are only about 5" square but have a laminated cover and fun, colorful pictures throughout. Each book has a different illustrator so the picture styles vary which adds a little more interest. The fairy tales chosen in these books are common and each have a moral. My daughter loved sharing what she thought was the moral to each story. I loved the repetitive lines in most of the stories which help build vocabulary by encouraging independent reading. The stories are simple but still have a few unfamiliar words in each book. The illustrations support the stories very well. I didn't really like the phrases "by and by" and "quick as a wink" which are used many times in these stories. However, I would recommend these books to any parent wanting to add leveled reading books to their home library. I would use these as a read aloud for children who are not yet reading, for children reading at those levels, and for children who are a little beyond those levels as independent, fun reading.

My four year old LOVES reading these books. The stories are classics and the pictures are fabulous. I like that some large words are included in the stories periodically to build on vocabulary. It's an awesome buy for so many books.

This was a nice package of books for emergent readers. I was a little disappointed that the levels were mostly on the higher end of the level range. I expected an equal number of E, F, G, H, and I books. Otherwise, very pleased.
